64 activities to a disabled person shall not be vicariously liable for a proxy caregiver's 65 negligent performance of health maintenance activities unless the proxy caregiver is an employee of the physician, advanced practice registered nurse, or physician assistant. 66 67 Any person who trains a proxy caregiver to perform health maintenance activities for 68 a disabled individual may be held liable for negligently training that proxy caregiver 69 if such training deviated from the applicable standard of care and was a proximate 70 cause of injury to the disabled individual. 71 (C) For purposes of this paragraph, the term: 72 (i) 'Disabled individual' means an individual that has a physical or mental impairment 73

that substantially limits one or more major life activities and who meets the criteria for a disability under state or federal law.

Such activities are typically taught by a registered professional nurse, but may be taught by an attending physician, advanced practice registered nurse, physician assistant, or directly to a patient and are part of ongoing care. Health maintenance activities are those activities that do not include complex care such as administration of intravenous medications, central line maintenance, and complex wound care; do not require complex observations or critical decisions; can be safely performed and have reasonably precise, unchanging directions; and have outcomes or results that are reasonably predictable. Health maintenance activities conducted pursuant to this paragraph shall not be considered the practice of nursing.

(iv) 'Training' means teaching proxy caregivers the necessary knowledge and skills to perform health maintenance activities for disabled individuals.
